App One-liner: Custom software solutions that streamline operations through purpose-built workflows, data integration, and automated reporting.

Short value props: Purpose-built workflows that match how you actually work. Integration-first approach for systems that connect existing tools and data - No vendor lock-in helping you maintainable solutions you can own.

Fractional CTO One-liner: leadership for organizations that need clarity, momentum, and custom-built systems without vendor lock-in.

Fractional CTO value prop:

- Senior tech leadership without the full-time cost (strategy, prioritization, vendor decisions)
- Integration-first for systems that connect existing tools and data into one workflow
- Hands-on execution: custom software, automation, and reporting delivered
- No vendor lock-in providing maintainable solutions you can own

Plain-language definition: A fractional CTO provides part-time senior technology leadership: evaluating your current systems and risks, setting priorities, defining a roadmap, guiding vendors and technical decisions, and ensuring systems are secure and maintainable.

Common Formatting Rules (Docs + PDFs)

- Use Blue for section headers; Orange only for small highlights
- Prefer bold for emphasis over lots of color
- Keep layouts clean: generous margins, short paragraphs, bullet lists
- Use thin Light Gray dividers between sections
